Vehicle Idling Policy for The Maryland Zoo in Baltimore

In effect as of 16 June 2022

Statement of Purpose

This policy is designed to assist in protecting air quality within the Zoo and throughout Baltimore City, especially the area surrounding Druid Hill Park, through the reduction of pollution due to exhaust emissions from engine idling by employees, visitors, bus drivers, product vendors, and construction staff on the grounds and around the perimeter of The Maryland Zoo in Baltimore.

Background

Air pollution, particularly ground-level ozone, is an immediate and ongoing concern in Maryland and especially within Baltimore City. It impacts resident health, economic growth, and quality of life. Exhaust from idling vehicles contributes substantially to adverse health conditions by emitting pollutants such as particulate matter, nitrogen oxides, carbon monoxide, carbon dioxide, and sulfur dioxide, that may be immediately or cumulatively harmful to Zoo staff and volunteers, guests, animals, and residents of surrounding neighborhoods. Emissions from vehicle exhaust can lead to serious health conditions like asthma and other respiratory illnesses and can worsen existing heart and lung disease, especially in children and the elderly. The rate of asthma among children in Baltimore City is more than twice the state and national average. Idling vehicles incur higher fuel costs and increased engine deterioration over time. Vehicle emissions also release greenhouse gases into the atmosphere that contribute to the global climate crisis that is negatively affecting people and plant and animal species worldwide. Excessive vehicle idling is against the law in the State of Maryland (COMAR Transportation Section 22-402 (c)(3)).

Statement of Policy

It is the policy of The Maryland Zoo in Baltimore that driver of any vehicle belonging to the Zoo, Zoo employees and volunteers, product vendors, delivery companies, construction contractors, and school busses must turn the engine off when a vehicle will be stopped for more than 10 seconds, except when stopped in traffic.

Exemptions

The policy of turning the engine off when stopped does not apply for the periods during which idling is necessary under the following circumstances:

1. To provide for the safety of vehicle occupants, such as extreme heat or cold conditions (e.g. to run the heater for 5 minutes at intervals when it is below 20°F) when alternative accommodation for occupants cannot be provided.
2. To use lift equipment or other equipment necessary to accommodate individuals with one or more disabilities or facilitate loading and unloading of products or goods.
3. When due to any medical necessity.
4. When stopped due to traffic.
5. When specific traffic, safety, or emergency situations arise.

If in the above exemption cases equipment can be run from the battery alone, drivers should refrain from idling unless there is a significant concern of draining the battery.

Implementation

This policy shall be effective immediately from the date of signature.

Violations of Policy

Vehicles idling due to one of the above exemptions, may be redirected to a less populous location to limit the immediate effects of exhaust emissions. Vehicle operators found to be in violation of this policy will be asked to come into immediate compliance. Vehicle operators may be counseled on the policy and have vehicle information recorded for further communication with the owner regarding the policy.

The vehicle owner is accountable for all idling violations, regardless of who was operating the vehicle at the time of the idling. For example, if an employee is operating a vehicle owned by a fleet owner, the fleet owner is responsible for ensuring the operator complies with the idling limits.
